

Doesn't Change Anything

Won't look in the mirror, doesn't want to see Thinks he looks weird, Doesn't change anything
Grows a beard, Doesn't change anything

She stares at her eyes, they stare right back
She blinks once or twice, they stare right back
She wishes they were blue, instead of black

Both are locked in little rooms
Far apart so they never knew
Anyone ever felt the way they do
Still doesn't change anything , never will

Selfies take the place of people,
Screens take over minds
They could hear madness,,screaming from below
Never left the room, knew better than to follow

Still far apart never to meet,
A full life yet lonely, Try to make friends,
Doesn't change anything, Inside is what is needed,
to change anything.

Beard doesn't help, blue contacts didn't work
Somehow forgotten how to go outside
Trapped by the image in their mirrors
Seems like there's no where to hide.

Still far apart never to meet,
A full life yet lonely, Try to make friends,
Doesn't change anything, Inside is what is needed,
to change anything.
